Sever has been running slow and printers went down yesterday. Computer consultant Gio was contacted. Gio found Micro-soft and Norton Anti-virus were storing 13 Gigs of data into the hard drive portioned for the operating system. I worked with Gio , and Norton, by remote, to move most of the ant-virus into a different section of the hard drive.

Note: A long term solution may include installing a bigger hard drive, allowing bigger partitions. Note: The existing partition could be expanded, however data could be compromised if something went wrong. It is safer to transfer data to a new hard drive and keep the old as a back-up.
